3. To be environmentally responsible.
4. To be recognized as an asset and leader in the community.

“Although the tools and technology have changed since my father, Leo Merchant, started this business in a garage in 1963, the basic principles haven’t changed a bit. Work hard, be efficient and through continuous process improvement and innovation produce competitively priced quality products. My father would be proud to know that is my philosophy and I am committed to those same values.”
